

Secretary Baker delivering his address at the Flag day exercises on the Monument lot. President and Mrs. Wilson in box at left. Perhaps you can find yourself in the crowd. (Photo by Harris & Ewing.)

A sample of the ruthless devastation wrought by the Huns in France—a fine old chateau reduced to debris and giant trees wantonly cut down.

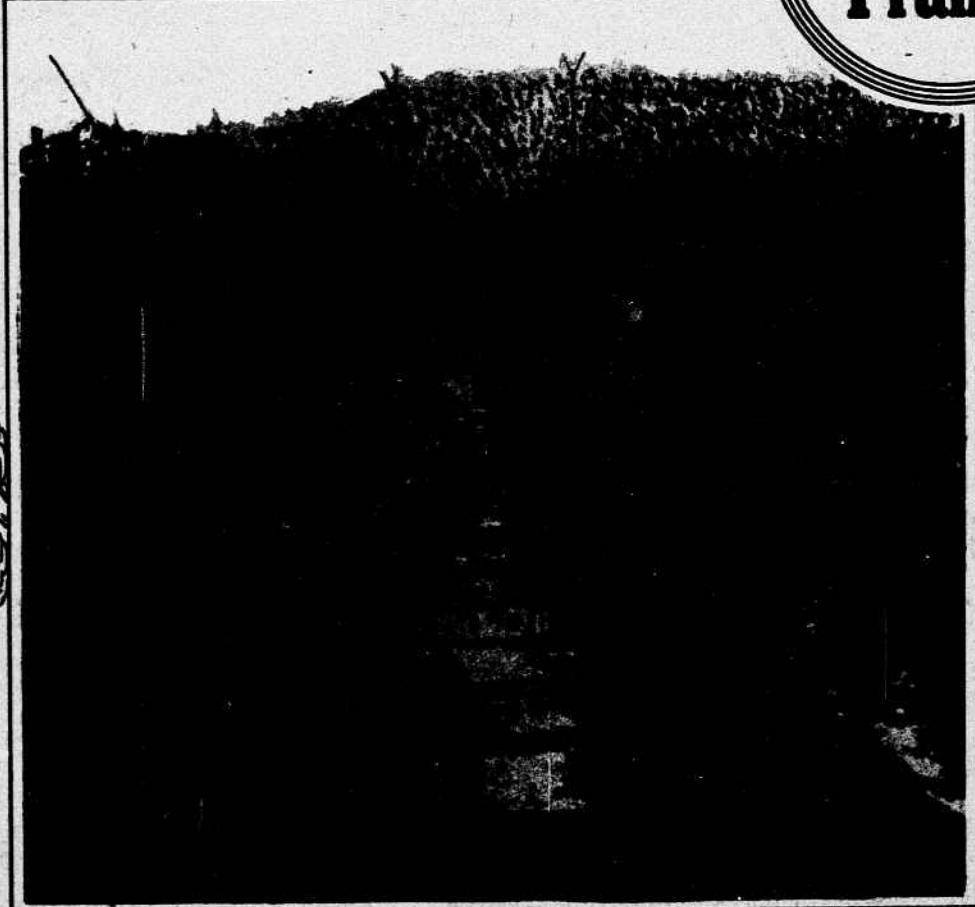

A French "pill-box" (steel shelter) on the Aisne front.

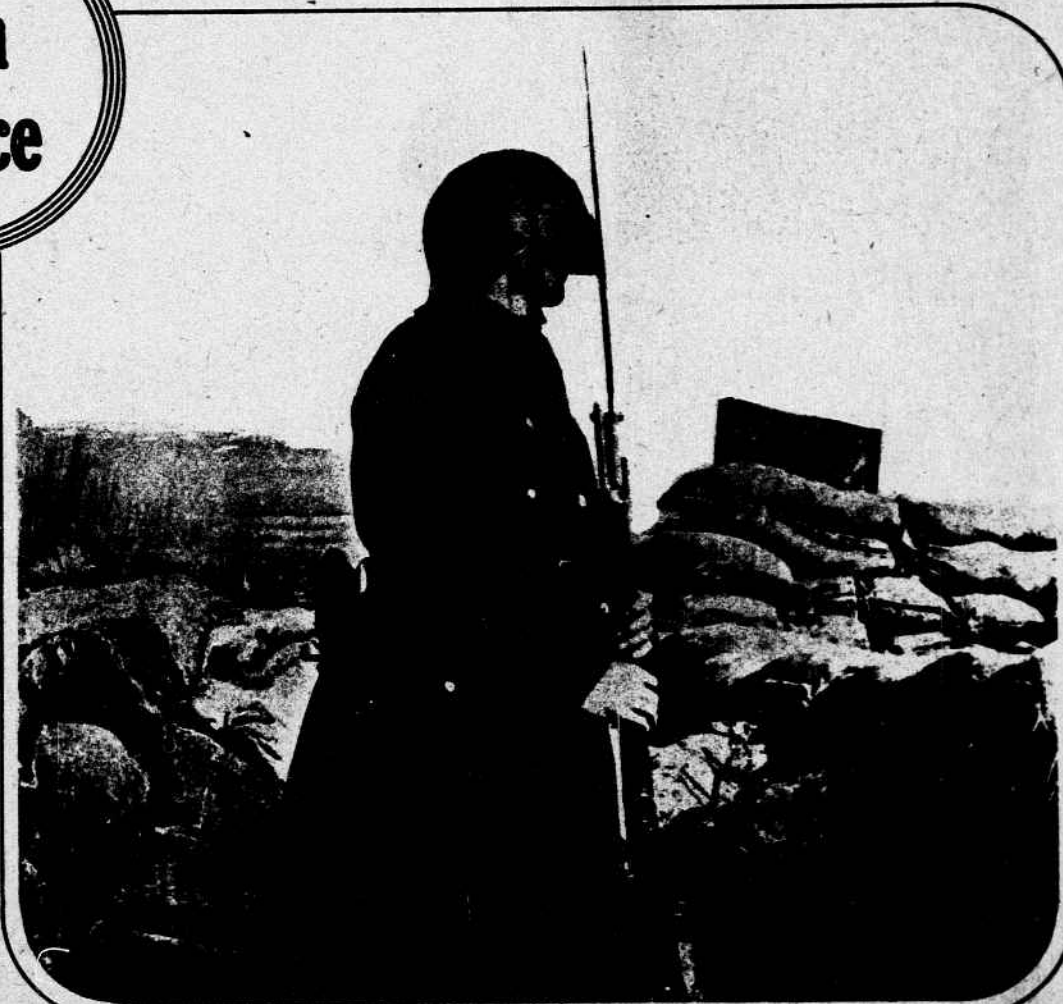

From France

This is a photograph of a tree so "girdled" by the German hordes that it will die. Acres of fine orchards in France have been laid waste in this ruthless fashion.

A camouflaged passage way just beyond the front lines in France.

New visored helmet. A Belgian soldier on sentry duty in the trenches is seen wearing the latest pattern of steel helmet, which is provided with a visor that can be lowered at will and forms an excellent protection for the upper part of the face.

(Photo by Central News Photo Service.)